

Opportunity for Local Artists and Crafts People

For the first time ever, Carsphairn Heritage Centre will be open every Saturday throughout November and December to sell local arts and crafts. This is a fantastic opportunity for makers to catch those pre-Christmas sales at a regular venue.

The Centre is keen to help promote local makers and is therefore offering this opportunity without commission; you retain 100% of the sales price of your items. All we ask is that you help to steward in the centre, for one 3 hour shift per week, pro rata across the season. The duties are simple and training will be given

You will be able to demonstrate your craft during your stewarding session (where applicable), as well as interacting with potential customers.

The Centre has free broadband access and staff tea/coffee making facilities. For those unable to help with stewarding, we will charge commission on sales at 25% in order to help with our running costs.

This is a pilot project and if well received, the Centre will heavily promote local arts and crafts alongside next year's heritage display, when the Centre re-opens in Spring 2018.
